Volunteer and Service Learning

Interested in making a positive difference in your community?

Volunteering and Experiential Learning can be very rewarding experiences that enable you to make a positive difference in the lives of others, learn more about yourself and your place in the world, and increase your awareness and ability to help solve some of our greatest social challenges. Tutor students in high schools, serve as a mentor to youth, or volunteer with a high school theatre project. Information about opportunities available at the UW including links to off-campus resources can be found at The Center for Experiential Learning.
