

SCHOOL OF DRAMA
STUDENT HANDBOOK
2018-2019

A STATEMENT FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Welcome to the UW School of Drama! And welcome to the School of Drama Student Handbook. This handbook is full of answers, but we have no doubt there'll always be more questions. Please don't ever hesitate to ask them. Ask your teachers. Ask the School of Drama staff. We are here to help you become innovative and brave artists and thinkers, creative leaders. That leadership begins with the quality and courage of your questioning. We can't wait to hear what's on your minds.

Have a great year!

GRADUATE PROGRAM MISSION STATEMENT:

The School of Drama investigates the art of theatre and performance – its practice, history, meaning – and fosters a spirit of inquiry by providing artists and scholars with tools for critical and inventive thinking and opportunities for practical application.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM MISSION STATEMENT:

The faculty of the School of Drama considers the optimum preparation for the theatre artist to be comprised of a liberal arts undergraduate major in drama and a graduate conservatory education. Therefore, the School's BA program is dedicated to providing a well-rounded major within a liberal arts context. Almost half of this major is devoted to theatre history, theatre literature and criticism; the balance consists of courses in all elements of production. The breadth of required general education courses is viewed as a means to an enriched artistic expressiveness.

THE VALUE OF A LIBERAL ARTS EDUCATION:

POLICIES, PROCEDURES & REQUIREMENTS

ATTENDANCE POLICY

Attendance and punctuality for all classes, crew assignments and performance calls is mandatory. Attendance is understood to be an individual's presence and full participation for the entire time period assigned to the session. Punctuality involves sufficient time to be dressed in appropriate attire, with proper equipment, warmed-up and ready to engage fully in the activity at the beginning of the session. The School of Drama fully supports the attendance and punctuality policies listed in all faculty and staff course syllabi. Students should know and conform to the policies stated in their course syllabi. While serious illness or injury may excuse a student from a session, excessive absences or lateness will call attention to the students' ability to keep pace with the training. If, in the opinion of a faculty member or members, a student has recorded excessive absences, the faculty and staff of the student's option reserve the right to determine future participation in the program.

PRODUCTION "LATE NIGHT" POLICY

There are no excusable absences from morning classes due to late night work on productions.

AUDITIONS

The School of Drama presents a variety of "mainstage" and studio productions each year. To help distinguish between the acronyms, here are basic guidelines and audition information.

- PATP - (mainstage) directed by faculty, visiting directors, or third-year MFA Directing students; auditions are primarily restricted to PATP students and occasionally undergraduates; performed for 2 weeks in the Playhouse, Studio, or Penthouse Theatre.
- BA - (mainstage) directed by faculty or visiting directors; auditions are open to all University undergraduate students, with priority given to Drama majors; performed for 2 weeks in the Playhouse, Studio, or Penthouse Theatre.
- Directing 2nd Year - (mainstage) directed by 2nd year MFA directing students; auditions are open to all University students; performed for 2 weeks in Playhouse, Studio, or Penthouse Theatre.
- Directing Projects - directed by MFA directing students; auditions are open to all - University students and outside people; performed for 3 to 4 evenings, usually in HUT 218. Graduate students in the directing program present one project each quarter. Depending on the length of the piece, the projects usually involve three or four weeks of rehearsal. The maximum weekly hours of rehearsal are limited to 22 2 hours.
- Other - throughout the year there are also a variety of Cabaret projects and undergraduate directing scenes that are cast from the general student pool. Audition notices are posted on the callboard and via e-mail. Prepared material is usually required.

BUILDING HOUSEKEEPING, MAINTENANCE

It is essential that every member of the faculty, staff and student body of the School of Drama show concern and responsibility for maintaining our facilities. All members of the SoD community are expected to report any safety violations and/or observed damage to buildings and equipment to either the Administrative office or the Production office. This means tell us when a light is burned out or if anything gets broken!

Please remember to keep the building safe and nice looking not only for daily users, but for the general public as well. With UTS productions, directing projects and various other shows, we have many people coming to Hutchinson to see your work. We want the general public to feel safe, comfortable and to have a good impression of our facilities.

Custodial services are limited due to budget cuts, throughout the University.

Routine services provided are trash removal, floor sweeping, spot mopping, spot vacuuming. They will usually clean the chalkboards and whiteboards, and replenish chalk or markers. They sweep stairwells, sanitize restrooms, collect recycling, and lock and unlock the building entry doors. Other services are non-existent or are done at a cost to the School. Custodial Services do not dust window sills, desks, computer screens, etc. You can help us make our spaces more pleasant for all of us by observing some guidelines:

PLEASE:

- No open drink containers in carpeted areas. If you spill something, please wipe it up immediately.
- Throw your own trash away properly, recycling when possible. There are recycling containers in various places throughout Hutchinson Hall. Please recycle the appropriate items in their respective containers - no garbage with the recyclables, etc.
- Don't put your feet up on furniture or against the walls.
- Do not move furniture/rehearsal blocks/props/flats/door frames to another rehearsal room. You may only use what is in the room you're using!
- Wear white-soled gym shoes in HUT 201, 202 and 208.
- Return rooms HUT 150, 154, 211 to the posted classroom layout after you are finished rehearsing. Don't leave any props or costume pieces in a room.
- Take care of the floors, don't drag furniture, please.
- When using rooms that have technical equipment (HUT 130, 201, 205, 218), take special care with security - closing doors and windows. Do not change lighting plot, without checking.
- If you don't know how equipment works, please ask. Never use pins or tape on velour drapes or masking tape on wooden floors.
- Students dressing for performances or classes presented in Hutchinson Hall should use the design wing restrooms rooms to change, if possible.
- If something breaks or doesn't work, let us know so it can be repaired. What we don't know about, we can't fix!

BUILDING SECURITY

Due to the number of street persons in the U District neighborhood, it is vital that the security of Hutchinson Hall and other drama facilities be maintained.

- Be sure to close all windows, especially those on the ground floor when you're finished so no one climbs through from the outside. Our custodian works in the mornings, so there won't be anyone to close up after you.
- None of the doors should be propped open at night. We've found transients sleeping in closets and in classrooms, and they have gained access through the doors which have been left open. The Costume Shop has had problems with people climbing through their windows.

- The Scene Shop, because of its location, has had problems as well.
- Please be aware - and don't assume that someone else will take the responsibility of closing a door or window.
- If you find a transient sleeping in a room, do not try to deal with him/her yourself. Call 911 then alert the Main office so that they can direct the police to the proper room or witness.
- Do not leave bags, backpacks, purses or leather jackets unattended in a room or the library and expect them to be there when you return. Take them with you even on a quick rehearsal break.

Alcoholic beverages are not permitted in School of Drama facilities at any time unless a special permit has been purchased from the State of Washington Liquor Control Board. This has to be cleared with the Executive Director prior to purchase.

Doors: Present your UW Student ID (Husky card) to the front desk to enter into the system to allow you to enter Hutchinson Hall after building closes (6pm) and on weekends. Do NOT prop open any doors or admit someone you do not know into the building. Rehearsals must end by 11pm and the building must be clear by midnight.

CABARET

This space (Hutchinson 205) serves a variety of functions. Weekdays until 5:00pm, it is a classroom space. Later in the evening, it is a Performance Space equipped with lighting and sound systems, drapes, and seating. Several weeks each quarter are reserved for the Undergraduate Theatre Society. We invite students to generate projects for this space - play readings, plays, musical performances, improvisations, etc.- and produce the projects themselves. You must prepare a written proposal including dates, title, cast size, scale of production, audience/number, royalties/number and present it to either the BA Council or UTS Board in the quarter prior to proposed production. There is a student supervisor who will schedule the room and instruct users in operating the equipment and the basic rules in use of the space. See Administrative Policy Memo No. 3 for more information. Use only what is in the space or what you bring yourself for props. You may not use flats, boxes, etc. from other rooms in Hutchinson. After using the space, clean up after yourselves and remove any prop or costume items you have brought into the space.

One last thing - you don't have to use this space only for productions. If you want to get together with a group and work on scenes or technique, feel free to do so.

CASTING POLICY (Memo No. 9, Revised October 2002)

Because of the multiple missions of the School it is impossible to anticipate every problem and potential exception but in general these are the guidelines by which plays are cast.

- I. The School of Drama strives to provide all of its (our) students challenging and significant experiences. We strive to recognize and celebrate the diversity of the student body. Our intent is to allow that diversity to flourish. To that end, the School of Drama adheres to the U.W.'s policy of equal opportunity regardless of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, disability or status as a disabled veteran or Vietnam era veteran.
- II. School of Drama productions are open to all students (and occasionally to actors from outside the university) with the following exceptions:

- a. At least one play each year will be cast from among BA students
 - b. Several plays will be selected each year to serve the training needs of the PATP. Casting for these plays may include BA students when necessary.
 - c. Thesis Productions will be cast primarily from the PATP.
- III. All members of the PATP (excluding first year students during Fall quarter) are required to audition and will be cast in roles suitable to their current level of training each quarter. PATP actors may be cast in any production except B.A. shows.
 - IV. For Directing Workshops and Projects, the directors will make available a synopsis of the play so that students know what roles they are auditioning for. These productions will be cast with BA, PATP and the occasional off campus person.
 - V. When more than one play in the subscription season is casting at the same time, all the directors will work cooperatively to cast. Casting for the subscription season will be completed each quarter before casting for projects.
 - VI. The Director of the Undergraduate Program has the right to waive specific requirements associated with casting/audition policies in conjunction with acting courses offered by the School.
 - VII. It is the general policy of the School that once an actor has successfully auditioned for a role that he/she will accept the part if cast. However, a BA actor may decline a call back by crossing his/her name off the call back list after the general audition session. PATP actors will follow the policy outlined below.

CASTING POLICY PATP

The faculty is committed to the growth of each actor and director in the program in all aspects of their development. As much as is possible we provide opportunities for actors to be cast in a variety of plays and roles. These same opportunities do not necessarily translate into equitable results. Every effort is made to give each actor in the program opportunities to play a wide range and size of roles. However, it is unrealistic to assume everyone will get to play a lead role while in the program. No casting process exists that can be regarded as fair or desirable to everyone in the casting pool. There is often disappointment, sometimes extremely so, in not getting a desired role or a role of a certain size or significance. This has always been an unfortunate fact of life in the theatre and even though the PATP continues to create more casting opportunities, there can be no guarantees about the size or nature of a role any actor will play while enrolled in the program.

The casting process in any given production is subject to many variables and decisions are made in the context of several plays being cast at the same time, some directed by faculty, some by outside directors and some by student directors. Also, the casting pool changes depending on what year or quarter is current. Casting is based on a variety of considerations all in the service of balancing several intangible and subjective factors including:

- pedagogical considerations
- the director's vision for the play
- an actor's enthusiasm (or lack thereof) for a role
- the perceived quality or skill level of audition or previous work of any given actor
- maintaining standards of excellence in all UW productions

While the students' desires for roles will continue to be taken into account in casting, once final decisions are made it will be the obligation of the actor to accept the assigned role.

An up to date casting history file on each student is kept in the Head's office of each play, role (or roles), director, and theatre space.

The faculty, with student input, continually and forthrightly, in the context of evolving sensibilities, examines these issues. We strive for diversity and inclusion in all such matters. It is the intent of the Program to enable that diversity to flourish. The School of Drama adheres to the University of Washington's policy of equal opportunity regardless of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, disability or status as a disabled veteran or Vietnam era veteran.

This policy conforms to the policies of the other leading programs around the country.

COSTUMES

The Costume Shop makes some of its stock available for student use.

For all class work, workshops, and projects –

The hours for checking out and returning costumes are posted on the door of the costume shop in Hutchinson 135. They change each quarter. The stock employee is also listed on that posting. If you come during those hours someone will be available to work with you. It's that easy. If you cannot come during those hours, you can make an appointment directly with the employee by email.

Some Limitations:

Most of the items in costume storage are available for student use. Class work should be thought of as being performed in rehearsal clothing with a significant costume piece or element to enhance the work, rather than a fully costumed event. Student projects or productions that are under agreement with the School of Drama are considered "outside theaters." They are under the same borrowing arrangement as for those organizations.

All items must be returned cleaned and in the condition they were borrowed in. If an item is damaged or broken during your use, there will be a replacement fee. It's like a library book.

Certain things are off limits to everyone. They include anything marked "not for check out, or main stage use only," make up, facial hair and human hair wigs, period hats boots, and shoes, pocket watches and wedding rings, and leather clothing.

Every item must be returned by the last day of classes each quarter. Failure to return an item will limit your access to the stock in the future, grades will be held, and a replacement fee assessed.

COMPUTING RESOURCES

There are many computers available for students to check their email and register online. These are located in the lounges, Library, the theatres and shops. Additional UW PCs are available in UW Libraries and computer centers.

DUPLICATING/PHOTOCOPY SERVICES

No personal photocopying is allowed on the Drama office copier - this includes materials for classes you are taking. Teaching Assistants are permitted to use the copy machine in HUT 122 for running class materials for the courses they teach. For large copy orders, please get a budget number/green card from Sue and take it across the street to Paccar. The office copier can also scan and email material. The copy machine in the library is available for personal copying. Whenever possible, save money and trees by putting the material online for the students to read.

DISCOUNT TICKET POLICY

Drama majors exclusively are able to get a Majors Card which entitles you to 1 admission for each Drama show. These cards are available in the Advising Office at the beginning of each year or when a student becomes a major. There is a limit of one card per student.

Drama 101 students are eligible to purchase a 101 card for the quarter they are enrolled. Vouchers are available through the instructor. The price varies according to the studies in that particular quarter.

A student subscription is also available at UW Arts Ticket Office.

MFA/PhD Students receive a yearly pass that entitles them to 1 ticket for each Drama production; pick up the pass in the Production Office.

EMAIL

Most communication on campus is done by e-mail. Crew assignment notices, late changes to crew and rehearsal calls, and course-related information will be made by e-mail. Please make it a habit to check your e-mail regularly during the school day as you are responsible for any information disseminated in this manner.

EMPLOYMENT

The School has some hourly positions available - most through Work Study, but there are some "straight" hourly positions. Students eligible for the Work Study Program may apply for various positions within the School of Drama, which are listed through the Work Study office in 172 Schmitz. Positions may be available in House Management, the Scene Shop (carpentry, electrical, painting, and design assistance), and the Costume Shop (sewing, cutting and draping, and wardrobe maintenance). The Drama office occasionally will have clerical (or other) positions available during the year.

INCOMPLETES

In order to take an Incomplete in any Drama course, the student must petition for approval prior to the end of the quarter. Petition forms (SD 1330) are available from the Drama web site and must be signed by the instructor. This form includes important information about the grade of Incomplete which you should read carefully.

INDEPENDENT STUDY

Independent study courses require instructor ID numbers. If you are interested in doing an independent study with a faculty member, get the form off of the web site, have the instructor sign and return to the BA adviser, who will register you. Grad students should see Sue Bruns for independent study registration. To avoid late registration fees, these forms should be returned to the office by the third day of the quarter.

INSURANCE

The School of Drama does not hold an insurance policy on its students. Because of the ever-present danger of accidents when working in the theatres or on hard classroom floors, students are strongly advised to obtain their own coverage.

Graduate students who hold assistantships are eligible to have their health insurance paid by the University during the quarter(s) of their appointment. For information, contact Sue Bruns.

INTERNSHIPS

Undergraduates may earn academic credit for internships with regional theatres, community organizations, et al. For more information see the undergraduate adviser, or the advising web site.

LIST SERVS (SUBSCRIBING TO EMAIL LISTS)

The School communicates heavily by email. Important information about auditions, Majors Seminar sessions, career workshops, entry codes for classes, preview performances, etc., is sent out via to the BA listserv.

If you have any questions or problems, contact the drama adviser, HUT 129. A list of all Drama listservs is at: https://depts.washington.edu/uwdrama/secure/netid_required/emails.shtml (UW login required).

LOUNGE - HUT 116

It has computer terminals with which to check your email as well as tables, chairs, vending machines and other equipment. Please try to keep the noise level down as there are classrooms nearby and the building has a tunnel effect and noise carries. There is also a phone in the Lounge which can be used for off-campus local, as well as on-campus calls. (Five minute limit.)

MAIL BOXES

Graduate student mail boxes are in the hallway by the production office. Please check them frequently. Phone messages (which are not LIFE AND DEATH matters) are left here for you. Mailboxes for stage managers of main stage shows are located in the production office. Outgoing campus mail may be left in the area near the main doors in 101.

PHOTOCOPIES

Students may use the copier in the Drama Library or the one in Paccar Hall. You need to bring your own change to both, or you can purchase a Quick Copy Card. These cards are available at the Drama Library and elsewhere, and can be "filled up" for use by putting change or one dollar bills in a copy machine. Ask at the Drama Library for more info. The office copier is NOT available for student use.

You will also find machines in campus libraries and the Student Union Building and there are many businesses off-campus.

PRODUCTIONS

The School of Drama is very proud of its active production program presenting a large number of productions of varying styles. For more details, see the School of Drama's website at: <http://drama.washington.edu/performances>

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS

The School of Drama believes that discipline is a core standard of professionalism. Students are expected to maintain a professional attitude at all times. It is understood that this includes the prohibition of cell phones, instant messaging or anything else on a laptop screen that might be disruptive to an instructor or classmates. POLICY MEMOS

Students can review the official policies of the School of Drama, or online at:

<http://drama.washington.edu/policy-memos>

PREVIEW PERFORMANCES - Previews are usually on the Sunday and Tuesday prior to opening night of each show. Tickets are $10.00 and can be purchased in advance or at the door on the night of the performance (if available).

PUBLICITY AND MARKETING FOR THE SCHOOL

The Marketing for the School concentrates on main stage productions. The budget for these activities is extremely small and doesn't allow for as much marketing and publicity as any of us would like. We must always look for what will directly reach the most people for the least amount of money. The Seattle Times has a policy of not reviewing student productions.

PRODUCTION POLICIES

There is an extensive list of Production Policies covering almost all facets of production. You may wish to review the policy memo book on the web at: <http://drama.washington.edu/policy-memos>. Some particular policies are included in this handbook, but this list is not intended to be complete.

REHEARSALS

Rehearsals for mainstage productions generally begin five weeks before the first technical rehearsal. Exceptions to this are: the first show of the quarter, which may start later and incorporate eight-hour rehearsal days during a vacation week.

Rehearsals are Monday - Friday evening – times vary by production, including notes and scheduling and a Saturday daytime rehearsal. Ten minute breaks will be taken during rehearsals at 1 hour 20 minutes, and at 2 hours and 50 minutes into rehearsal.

Rehearsal schedules will be posted on the call board 24 hours before rehearsals and the director and stage manager are strongly encouraged to post schedules that cover the week in advance.

Directors are urged to make the most productive use of actor's time during rehearsals, but actors should recognize that there are times when they will need to wait around, so they should bring other work to fill that time.

A cast deputy will be elected at the first rehearsal. The deputy will function as cast representative/spokesperson. The deputy will bring cast concerns to the stage manager/director. If the stage manager or director is unable to address the concerns, the deputy will communicate them to the appropriate faculty or staff members. The stage manager will indicate who the deputy is by placing an asterisk by their name on the contact sheet.

A room will be assigned for rehearsals for each show. Every effort will be made to keep the same room assigned for all rehearsals for that production. The ground plan for the set may be painted or put down in spike tape on the floor using the tempera paints available in the Production Office. The markings should be minimal and the paint must be removed immediately following the final rehearsal in that room. Props and furniture brought in for rehearsal should be minimal and must be stored at the end of each rehearsal in a manner which allows classes to function in the room. If a director feels the need for a second room, such assignment will be made on a day to day basis, depending on whether a room is available.

Technical rehearsals

The purpose of these rehearsals is to incorporate the technical elements of scenery, lights, sound, props and costumes into the production.

Except for a show that techs over Thanksgiving, there are a minimum of five tech/dress rehearsals scheduled for each production.

The structure of the rehearsals will be determined in a meeting of director, designers and stage manager

3 to 4 days before the tech. For example, in a heavy scenery moving show a shift rehearsal may be scheduled for the first tech.

The lighting designer will “light over” rehearsals in the week prior to tech.

We try to maintain as much flexibility as the limitations of a student crew allows, in addressing the specific needs of each show.

First tech is a 8.5/10 call on Saturday: 10:00am – 2:30pm/break/4:00pm to 8:00pm.
Half hour at 9:30am.

Sunday off, then tech runs Monday through Friday for most shows. Half-hour is at 6:30 for tech week. The rehearsal must end promptly at 11pm for the actors to get out of costume and the crew to put props away, talk to designers etc.

At 11:15 the director has 15 minutes to give actor notes if s/he chooses. Often, on the first two evenings of tech, the actors are dismissed and the tech notes begin immediately. Otherwise, at 11:30 the actors are released and the director, designers and stage manager will hold a tech meeting - this must break by 11:55 and the building must be clear by midnight. If there are extensive notes, the director should break rehearsal early. The actors must be released by 11:30pm.

Breaks during tech: while rehearsals are still stop-and-go, breaks remain as during rehearsals 2-10 minute breaks. When acts begin running through, breaks will be at an appropriate time in the action - e.g. at intermissions. Care must be taken to ensure booth crews, follow spot operators, etc. are given breaks during rehearsal.

Actors and crew members are not to leave the building during tech rehearsals without permission from the stage manager.

SAFETY

Safety Committee

The School of Drama has a safety committee composed of Josie Gardner (chair), Alex Danilchik, Kathy Burch, Cathy Madden, Anne Stewart, and a student representative. Any safety problem can be reported to any one of these people.

Everyone - student, staff and faculty - is ultimately responsible for his/her own safety. Drama can be dangerous to your health! We have first aid kits in various places throughout the School. In Hutchinson, there are kits in the main lounge, design wing lounge and each theatre. If one of them is empty, please report it to the main office, so we can replenish it. If you are injured, please remember to report it. Fill out the on-line accident report here: <http://www.ehs.washington.edu/ohsoars/index.shtm>

If you are in need of an ambulance, call 911, if you are calling from a pay phone, just dial 911. From a cell phone tell dispatcher that you are on the UW campus.

EMERGENCY

ACTOR SAFETY - Common Sense PLUS - (from Cathy Madden, Safety Committee Member)

How can we define the actors' role in safety issues? Using common sense is how we usually define it, but theatre does create unusual circumstances which call for something beyond common sense. Oddly enough some guidelines for considering this issue come from the first chapter of the Mountaineering First Aid book published by The Mountaineers. While theatre artists are not rock-climbing in alpine conditions, we are in unusual circumstances. Stage sets are not designed like real rooms. There can be some pretty odd configurations backstage and onstage. The stages are lit for artistic expression and for the audience to see us, not necessarily for us to see. We act in condensed time, so we might make some pretty quick changes of direction. Plus the people we are playing are often under some kind of duress that demands a larger-than-life size of action. All of which asks us to have common sense PLUS.

The Mountaineers have analyzed contributing causes of Mountaineering accidents and have come up with 4 categories of causes:

- 1) Bad judgment using equipment (includes inadequate equipment and lack of protection)
- 2) Performance/judgment error (includes exceeding abilities)
- 3) Environmental Conditions (includes darkness)
- 4) Equipment failure

In a common sense plus rehearsal and performance environment, these factors may well be adapted to the stage.

Actors and Technicians - The bottom line in safety for an actor or technician is: Do not risk your body. You need it in this profession and you've got only one. Be responsible for your safety! Make yourself aware of your rights. If you have a problem with something you have been asked to do (if you feel it's not safe), report it to a committee member who will carry your concerns forward.

Bad judgment in using equipment

Hopefully, the design and/or stage management and/or directing team have chosen equipment that is safe. If you as an actor don't feel safe, it is your job to say so. You are not being brave to act on a platform you feel unsafe on; you are being foolhardy. If you don't feel safe, you aren't. It may be that all you need to know is that the platform is well-built, or it may be that you are the only one who knows that the platform is about to give way. If, in your judgment, anything about the set is questionable, ask the question.

Performance/Judgment Error

If you are asked to do something (i.e. a fall, a fight, a cartwheel) that you don't have the skill to do, it is your responsibility to tell that to the director or choreographer. If you don't know how to do something, you deserve to get the information that keeps you and your fellow actors safe. (See the definition of acceptable risk below.)

Environmental conditions

The environmental conditions are largely handled by the staff of the show. You have to remember, however, that you are the one who really knows what you need in terms of safety on the set. This is also the category that restricts the use of fire onstage. Fire creates an unpredictable and potentially dangerous environmental condition.

Acceptable Risk

How safe is safe enough? It would be impossible to totally eliminate risk. Further, willingness to take risks and challenge ourselves can be an important growth experience. The decision is to limit oneself to some acceptable risk. The amount of risk that is acceptable for one person is not necessarily the same as that for the next person, as capabilities and desires differ. Recognizing those limits is the basis for prevention. The limits themselves can be altered, as well. Capabilities can be improved, by training, physical conditioning, and experience. Arriving at an acceptable level of risk involves maintaining an adequate margin of safety, and this requires the use of judgment.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when:

- Submission to such conduct is made either an implicit or explicit condition of an individual's academic, work, living environment or participation in a University community.
- Submission or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for a decision that affects an individual's academic, work, living environment or participation in a University community.
- The conduct is sufficiently severe, persistent or pervasive that it could reasonably be expected to create an intimidating, hostile or offensive learning or working environment, or has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's academic, work, living environment, or participation in a University community.

Federal Laws and UW Policy

Sexual harassment is a form of employment discrimination prohibited under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Sexual harassment is a form of sexual discrimination prohibited under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972.

The University of Washington policy on sexual harassment volume 4 protects the rights and dignity of each individual in the University community.

Types of Sexual Harassment

Generally speaking, there are two types of sexual harassment, "quid pro quo" and hostile environment.

Quid pro quo (meaning "this for that") sexual harassment occurs when a student submits or rejects conduct of a sexual nature and that affects their involvement in an academic or employment decision or activity. So, for example, if an employee is made to believe that a promotion is likely if the employee goes on a date with the employee's supervisor, the employee is possibly being subjected to "quid pro quo" sexual harassment.

Hostile environment sexual harassment occurs when unwelcome conduct of a sexual nature creates an intimidating, threatening or abusive environment or is so severe, persistent or pervasive that it affects a person's ability to participate in a University activity. While a person engaging in harassing behavior most often has some form of power or authority over the person being harassed, that is not always the case. The harasser can be a peer of the person being harassed.

Examples of Sexual Harassment

- Sexual innuendoes, comments or bantering
- Intrusive, sexually explicit questions
- Posting or sending non-consensual sexual images on social media, via text or email
- Pressure, demands or requests for sexual acts
- Sexually explicit correspondence: emails, texts, calls or notes.
- Display of offensive materials: sexually explicit or with graphic content
- Unwanted physical or sexual advances
- Threats, bribes, quid pro quo or stalking

Reporting Sexual Harassment

- Sexual harassment of students is prohibited and can be reported to Title IX. The Health & Wellness Advocate (hwadvoc@uw.edu) can help students understand their reporting options, assist with safety planning, explore academic advocacy and interim measures and connect students to any additional resources and supports on campus.

Getting Help if You've Been Sexually Harassed

- Remember that no matter what the circumstances, you are not to blame for what is happening to you. Give yourself permission to do what you need to do to take care of yourself.

Trust your instincts

- Don't downplay the danger. If you feel you are unsafe, you probably are. Take threats seriously

Tell the harasser to stop

- Be direct, firm and clear about what type of behavior is unacceptable and that you want it to stop. If the harasser continues the behavior, you have options for reporting it.

Tell someone you trust for support

- This could be anyone, so think about who would be the most supportive. This person may be a good listener or be able to provide resource and options.

Contact the Health & Wellness Advocate for support, advocacy and resources

- The Health & Wellness Advocate is here to listen and supports students by providing a confidential place to discuss sexual assault, relationship violence, stalking, sexual harassment and related issues. The Health & Wellness Advocate can assist you in reporting and in exploring and arranging for counseling, academic or work changes. Contact hwadvoc@uw.edu for more information.

Keep evidence and a record

- When the harasser contacts you, write down the comments, time, date and place. Keep e-mails, phone messages, texts, letters or notes. Ask witnesses to write down what they saw.

Develop a safety plan, if needed

- This includes things like deciding who you can call when you need help, changing your daily routine, arranging for a place to stay and using the buddy system. The Health & Wellness Advocate or UW Police Department Crime Victim Advocate can help you create a safety plan.

Report to the police

- If you decide to report to the police, you can call the UW Police Department and the police officer will meet you in a location of your choice. You can also contact the Health & Wellness Advocate to review your reporting options. It is your decision to file a report. The harasser may have broken other laws by doing things like assaulting you or stealing or destroying your property.

Seek supportive counseling:

- You may want help dealing with the anxiety, fear or other feelings the harassment has caused. The Counseling Center and Hall Health Mental Health are resources on campus. The Health & Wellness Advocate (hwadvoc@uw.edu) can also provide referrals to off-campus community services.

Consider reporting to UW

- Title IX Policies Against Sexual Harassment
- University Complaint Investigation & Resolution Office – UCIRO
Conducts investigations of employee (staff and faculty) who alleged to have committed sexual harassment and other issues.

Consider a protection order

- Protection orders are civil court orders that can help protect a victim from a harasser by ordering the person to stop doing threatening acts, to stay away from the places you go and to stop contacting you. There are different types of protection orders depending on the nature of the violence or harassment and the relationship between people.
